My education and degree are in painting and sculpture. In tile making, I have found a way to indulge in both. As compared to a canvas, the clay offers another dimension to explore as well as a tactile foundation for a wide array of glazes. Glaze provides an intensity of color and a variety of surface texture that cannot be achieved with paint. Together, clay and glaze transform during firing and a kind of alchemy occurs. Mud vitrifies into ceramic, silica and oxides melt and harden into glassy hues. A surprise awaits me every time I nervously open the kiln.
